The Weakly Bulldogger

MONDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1916.

The Queen's Domain Is Her Dowry.
Lee Gibbs encountered on the street Frank Cronan, the young Lockinvar who stole our Queen Muriel for his bride.

"Where's your home?" asked Lee. "Tone, Oregon," said the bridegroom.
Lee confided to us confidentially afterward, "Marriage has gone to that fellow's head," he said. "He must be crazy with happiness. Next thing you know he'll be claiming he owns the world."

Wouldn't That Beat the Band?
The Round-Up band was playing in front of the Hotel Pendleton last Wednesday evening by way of coaxing out a crowd to hear Senator Norris speak on "Who's Hughes?" They played one tune and then another and then blew several strains of that pathetic melody, "How Dry I Am." At the conclusion of a window in the upper stories of the hotel shot up and a voice sounding very much like that of Marshall Spell, floated out clearly: "The river is just one block to the left, gentlemen."

The Round-Up Refined.
"The Round-Up of 1917" was the toast assigned to Roy W. Ritter, the reservation statesman, Friday night at the Commercial club banquet. He opened his remarks with the announcement that the Round-Up board, having read the criticisms of the Pendleton show written by a Willamette valley lady, had decided to debrutalize the next exhibition and make of it a refined product of the frontier.

"The Round-Up of 1917," he said, "will open with a thrilling croquet contest between Dell Blaneett and Buffalo Vernon, those daredevil cowboy performers. Another exciting attraction will be the knitting contest between Mabel De Long and Bertha Blaneett, which will supplant the brutal cowgirls relay. Roy Bishop was hard put to devise some Indian feature less barbarous and cruel than the Indian wardance and parade. Finally he came to the conclusion that he would have Major Swartzlander lead a blind squaw into the center of the arena and there pay her her quarterly rent money. Fred Earl and Hamley will then be released to see which will best the other to it. Sam Thompson was told he would have to use the livestock for some other events than bucking and bulldozing and he has decided to stage a cud-chewing match between Sharkey and the Jersey bull. A grand finale, fully as exciting and as amusing as the wild horse race yet with the savagery and cruelty of that event absent, has already been arranged. Chelopek and Dick Mayberry will take their young hopefuls before the grandstand and put on a diaper changing contest."

A Buggy Bunch.
At this same banquet the toastmaster asked all those present, one by one, to arise and tell the others his name and business. Dr. W. D. McNary, superintendent of the Eastern Oregon State Hospital, identified himself fully when he said, "My name is McNary. I'm the guy that will get you all."

Another Dire Threat.
"I see you have just celebrated your anniversary," said Judge Marsh to the editor of the Bulldogger. "In a very short time you're going to celebrate your obituary."

And O'Brien Laughed.
Douglas Robson, the gent with the canvas front who entertained the Commercial club banquets last Friday eve, told a story of the antiquity of the Northern Pacific branch line running into this city. He said he heard of two of our natives on the street arguing as to whether the N. P. or the O-W was the older one. He claimed the one was the other. At last the one contending for the priority of the N. P. declared, "Why, man, the Bible even made reference to this N. P. branch," and he referred his opponent to a certain verse in the first chapter of Genesis which read, "And on the fourth day the Lord created all creeping and crawling things."

The Preacher Scored.
Rev. Gornall, the new Methodist minister, was another who qualified as a humorist at the banquet. Roy Bailey, in explaining his loyalty to Pendleton, had stated that he was born here. Joe Tallman, in doing the same, declared he had made all of his money here. Rev. Gornall followed them. "I am unlike Mr. Bailey," he said, "for I came to Pendleton voluntarily. I am, however, like Mr. Tallman, for, though I have been here only a month, all the money I have I have made in Pendleton."

SLINGS AND ARROWS.
Walla Walla has announced that she is going to bury the hatchet, and we hope devoutly it won't be in the back of our neck.
America was discovered in 1492 but Americanism wasn't discovered until 1916.

Some men are like eggs. You can't tell whether they are good or bad until they are broke.

It costs one man $250 to have in his possession the plumage of a Chikan pheasant and it costs another man $250 for receiving more than two quarts of whisky, what is the comparative value of a dead bird and a blind pig?

Last Wednesday was Columbus Day which reminds us that old Christopher was the original advocate of "See America First."

When Imagining, Do a Good Job.
Writing wrathfully in the Portland Oregonian on the subject of the Pendleton Round-Up, a lady from the Willamette valley says in part, "But worse and worse to have an inhuman creature, called a man, to grasp the steer's lip with his teeth and hang on while the maddened beast ranges around the ring amid cheers of the thoughtless." How perfect is her description of the bulldozing! But why didn't she go on and complete the picture? Why didn't she tell how, sometimes, the human bulldog hangs on so long with his teeth that he tears the flesh away, and how, as he spits out the steer's lip and cracks his face in a bloody grin at the grandstand, those barbarous heathens shake the heavens with their wild applause.

Bob Admits Defeat.
"I take off my hat to this fellow," said Bob Fletcher as he read that Frank Scott and his wife of Kennett Ark., have been married ten years and have nineteen boys.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas.—"After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get my medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ill, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

HELPFUL HINTS IN COOKERY.

Some helpful ideas from 24 years of study and the actual testing of every recipe and hint, are here offered with the consent of Mrs. Helen Ruggles, a well-known teacher and lecturer on domestic economy.

"An aluminum griddle is almost a necessity to cake-lovers who live in small apartments, as no grease is required if a small amount of fat be added to the batter, eliminating any frying odors."

"A roll of paper toweling, kept in the kitchen, proves convenient for many purposes, and the cheap crepe paper napkins are handy for draining fried foods, and breading or flouring any article."

"In marketing, beware of bargains in foods. They usually mean poor quality or light weight. Inspect before buying. Dry groceries, package and canned foods, may be purchased economically in quantities. Medium-sized vegetables are better than over-large or too small. Weight rather than size should determine the choice of a cabbage. A small, firm head is best. Choose a creamy, compact head of cauliflower."

"Unseasonable foods should not be on the list of the thrifty buyer, for their price is high and the goods rarely up to standard. If we desire to avoid preservatives in our food, we should learn to read the labels on the cans, which are put there for our protection. Don't be afraid to add garlic to your purchase of vegetables, for a bit of it gives just a finish to a dish. Smooth-skinned heavy grapefruit are better than the light ones with the coarse skin. The russets are a rare treat."

"The care of food is half the battle. All food should be covered when put away. Milk and butter absorb odors more easily than any other articles. Remove the paper from meats as soon as received, for the paper absorbs the moisture, and put the meat away on a plate, never directly on the ice. Frozen fish should always be cooked as soon as thawed. Fish must be thoroughly washed and wrapped in a soft cloth to absorb moisture. Avoid washing meats, but scrape with a sharp knife and wipe with a damp cloth. If fruits or vegetables must be put in the refrigerator, they will not affect other foods, if first wrapped in clean paper. Wire baskets in which fruit and vegetables can be spread out, make the best containers for them. Paraffine paper and paper plates save both space and breakage. In the refrigerator. Keep butter on the bottom of the refrigerator. Cooked foods on the shelf above, and any odorous article on the top shelf. The glass container for a brick of butter prevents absorption of odors, and the butter may be cut to advantage.

"After the jar of olives has been opened, the remaining contents will keep in a cool place if covered with a little olive oil. Wash in cold water before serving. Wrap cheese in a cloth soaked in vinegar to keep it moist.

"Plan all meals ahead. One starchy vegetable and one green one are the proper accompaniments for the meat. In planning a meal for a company, arrange a menu that can be prepared ahead; then group the articles in the pantry, or refrigerator, so that those to be served together are quickly assembled. All salads can be prepared in advance, and put in covered cans or closely wrapped, and kept cool. Moistened cooked spinach well in French dressing, and put away in a mold or cup for individual salads; surround with chopped eggs or shredded ded cabbage and a little mayonnaise before serving.

"Cooked bacon may be cut fine and added to corn-bread batter, spread over an omelet or poached eggs, stirred into scrambled eggs, used in rice or potato cakes, as a sandwich filling or in milk toast.

"Here is a savory combination. Half fill the casserole with sliced raw potatoes and onions, lay on top of these a thick slice of ham and pour over all a thin white sauce. Cover and bake for one hour; then uncover and brown."
